Forecast for Saturday 14 Aug 2021

Weather: A cloudy but bright start, though there will be some patches of mist on western facing slopes, through the morning there will be some sunny intervals but into the afternoon and evening cloud will lower and there will be some rain and drizzle at times, mostly in the west.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 80% becoming 20% in the afternoon and overnight.

Visibility: Good first thing in general but poor on some western facing slopes, deteriorating in the afternoon as cloud with bases around 500m arrives from the west to cover most slopes at times with outbreaks of drizzle deteriorating visibility further in the afternoon and evening.
